

D/HH Resource Links

<http://www.aslpro.com/> - a really nice ASL site; includes an extensive video dictionary, vocab quizzes and educator account capability. Excellent for anyone learning sign, and a great resource for ASL teachers as well.

<http://commtechlab.msu.edu/sites/aslweb/browser.htm> - another really well-done video dictionary. This one is a bit older and smaller than ASL Pro.

<http://www.shodor.org/succeedhi/interpreters/Tsigns.html> - a limited video dictionary focusing on computer terminology.

<http://www.rit.edu/~comets/signs.htm> - an extensive video dictionary focusing on mathematical and scientific terminology; great resource for teachers/interpreters in the college setting.

<http://www.needsoutreach.org/Pages/sl.html> - another video dictionary, this one focusing on elementary and secondary educational subjects, fantastic for educational interpreters.

<http://asl.ms/> - receptive fingerspelling practice! An awesome resource for anyone learning ASL, this site provides an endless word bank of fingerspelled words at various speeds to challenge your skills.

<http://www.netsignnews.com/> - this website provides anchor-style news videos in sign language! There is also a voice interpretation for non-sign-user access. Updated daily with several news stories everyday.

<http://www.signews.org/> - the website for the newspaper put out by CSD.

<http://www.tcdeaf.com/main.do> - a website for the Deaf in the Twin Cities. Includes a calendar of events, DHHS directory, links and job postings=
